

The Community Legal Research Center Objectives and Goals:

1. Mission statement: The mission of Community Legal Research Center is to empower those who are incarcerated and help them seek proper representation by way of counsel into revisiting their trial phase of their particular case matter. The concept is to gather support from the inmate and the family members that have so joined in this precise effort by way of researching and receiving information through investigators, advocates and loved ones that have their own stories and energy that is designed to promote hope where inmates are challenging the higher courts toward seeking release.
2. Purpose: To implement programs and concepts that are designed to help inmates seek a successful re-entry. The goal is to and reeducate and ultimately rehabilitate toward having a fruitful and valuable life in society. There is a common need to research the many areas that are facing the inmate or parolee toward successfully seeking a release from Prison. We are ever committed to breaking the cycle of recidivism and the ever revolving door of racism and social ills and social change of the Prison Industrial Complex.
3. Scope: The scope is to break the population goal of having 2million incarcerated within the United States. To break down and reduce the population of those that are presently incarcerated. We at Community Legal Research Center must find ways of economics by way of employment and housing and jobs that pay prevailing wages toward seeking a better overall education after experiencing incarceration.
